Here but three forces are applied, but any given number may be introduced; in the present case, H/x Bibs. + Hot $X C$ lbs. = $H n A$ lbs. The student must not confound the principle of the equality of moments, just defined, with the intensity of forces usually considered by examining the motions they produce, or the spaces passed over when the motions are uniformly accelerated. It has been before shown that, generally, $W v$ (Force) $= (l.)$; t being an extremely small portion of time, denominated an element, during which the velocity v is generated. The above formula shows that if, by observing the laws of motion, we know for each instant the value of the ratio-, we shall then have that of the corresponding effort designated (Force) in the above formula. Suppose we know, from experiment, that the motion is uniformly accelerated,...
